

تعبير عن اليوم الوطني السعودي بالانجليزي

The Saudi National Day is considered the day of the birth of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia in its modern form, which falls on the thirteenth of September of each year, as this day is considered a holiday dating back to the year 1932, when King Abdulaziz announced the unification of all the countries and their annexes into one strong united kingdom.

The journey of unifying the Kingdom began since King Abdulaziz bin Abdulrahman bin Faisal Al Saud was able to restore Riyadh, which represents the capital of his ancestors from the House of Saud who established the “second” Saudi state, and after he returned his family to it, he continued his work in all ways, especially his armed struggle, which lasted for 30 years. General, and he has one goal, which is to unite the kingdom completely, and in the year 1932, King Abdulaziz Al Saud was able to formally unify it.

The Saudi National Day is considered a feast and an important occasion for all Saudis, because it represents in their conscience the unity, strength and pride, and the birth of the new state, which has continued since that day in the process of progress and prosperity and has not stopped for a moment to be the greatest, most beautiful and most beloved country to them.

تعبير عن اليوم الوطني بالانجليزي قصير

The Saudi National Day is the holiday celebrated by the Saudi people on the 23rd of September every year. The celebration of this day began in 2005, when King Abdullah approved this day as an official holiday, and in that year it coincided with the seventy-fifth festival.

The celebration of the Saudi National Day is an important cultural and national custom, linked to the anniversary of the birth of the Saudi state in its modern form under the name of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, which was called by King Abdulaziz Al Saud in the decree issued on the twenty-third of September 1932 AD, after its name was the Kingdom of Hejaz. and Najd and its annexes, where, after a long armed struggle that lasted for decades, he was able to gather the scattering of this pure country and make its word one strong in the face of all those who oppose it.

On the same date in 2014, the Jeddah Governorate Secretariat set up the tallest flagpole in the world in the square of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques in the center of Jeddah, as an expression of the glory, pride and pride that this important day represents for all the people of this good country.