CLOSE READING

From the Adventures of TOM SAWYER BY MARK TWAIN

1 Tom began to think of the fun he had planned for this day, and his sorrows multiplied. Soon the free boys would come tripping along on all sorts of delicious expeditions, and they would make a world of fun of him for having to work—the very thought of it burnt him like fire. He got out his worldly wealth and examined it—bits of toys, marbles, and trash; enough to buy an exchange of work, maybe, but not half enough to buy so much as half an hour of pure freedom. So he returned his straitened means to his pocket, and gave up the idea of trying to buy the boys. At this dark and hopeless moment an inspiration burst upon him! Nothing less than a great, magnificent inspiration.

2 He took up his brush and went tranquilly to work. Ben Rogers hove in sight presently—the very boy, of all boys, whose ridicule he had been dreading. Ben's gait was the hop-skip-and-jump—proof enough that his heart was light and his anticipations high. He was

3 eating an apple, and giving a long, melodious whoop, at intervals, followed by a deep-toned ding-dong-dong, ding-dong-dong, for he was personating a steamboat. As he drew near, he slackened speed, took the middle of the street, leaned far over to starboard and rounded to ponderously and with laborious pomp and circumstance—for he was personating the Big Missouri, and considered himself to be drawing nine feet of water.

4 Tom went on whitewashing—paid no attention to the steamboat. Ben stared a moment and then said:

5 “Hi-yo! You’re up a stump, ain’t you?”

6 No answer. Tom surveyed his last touch with the eye of an artist, then he gave his brush another gentle sweep and surveyed the result, as before. Ben ranged up alongside of him. Tom’s mouth watered for the apple, but he stuck to his work. Ben said:

7 “Hello, old chap, you got to work, hey?”

8 Tom wheeled suddenly and said:

9 “Why, it’s you, Ben! I warn’t noticing.”

10 “Say—I’m going in a-swimming, I am. Don’t you wish you could? But of course you’d druther work—wouldn’t you? Course you would!”

11 Tom contemplated the boy a bit, and said:

12 “What do you call work?”

13 “Why, ain’t that work?”

14 Tom resumed his whitewashing, and answered carelessly:

15 “Well, maybe it is, and maybe it ain’t. All I know, is, it suits Tom Sawyer.”

16 “Oh come, now, you don’t mean to let on that you like it?”

17 The brush continued to move.

18 “Like it? Well, I don’t see why I oughtn’t to like it. Does a boy get a chance to whitewash a fence every day?”

19 That put the thing in a new light. Ben stopped nibbling his apple. Tom swept his brush daintily back and forth—stepped back to note the effect—added a touch here and there—criticized the effect again—Ben watching every move and getting more and more interested, more and more absorbed. Presently he said:

20 “Say, Tom, let me whitewash a little.”

21 Tom considered, was about to consent; but he altered his mind:

22 “No—no—I reckon it wouldn’t hardly do, Ben. You see, Aunt Polly’s awful particular about this fence—right here on the street, you know—but if it was the back fence I wouldn’t mind and she wouldn’t. Yes, she’s awful particular about this fence; it’s got to be done very careful; I reckon there ain’t one boy in a thousand, maybe two thousand, that can do it the way it’s got to be done.”

23 “Oh, shucks, I’ll be just as careful. Now lemme try. Say—I’ll give you the core of my apple.”

24 “Well, here—No, Ben, now don’t. I’m afeard—”

25 “I’ll give you all of it!”

26 Tom gave up the brush with reluctance in his face, but alacrity in his heart. And while the late steamer Big Missouri worked and sweated in the sun, the retired artist sat on a barrel in the shade close by, dangled his legs, munched his apple, and planned the slaughter of more innocents. There was no lack of material; boys happened along every little while; they came to jeer, but remained to whitewash. And when the middle of the afternoon came, from being a poor poverty-stricken boy in the morning, Tom was literally rolling in wealth.

27 Tom said to himself that it was not such a hollow world, after all. He had discovered a great law of human action, without knowing it—namely, that in order to make a man or a boy covet a thing, it is only necessary to make the thing difficult to attain.

“What do you call work?”

Water's Worth

"When the well is dry, we know the worth of water."
—Benjamin Franklin, 1746

What did Ben Franklin mean? When something is gone, we understand how much we need it. This is especially true for water. Every living thing on Earth needs water. Without water, there is no life. It may seem that we will never run out of water. However, let's look at the facts. Ninety-seven percent of Earth's water is in oceans.

25 Which detail explains why Earth has a small amount of drinking water?

A It may seem that we will never run out of water.

B Ninety-seven percent of Earth's water is in our oceans.

C Experts worry that small percentage of usable water will not last.

D Governments and individuals are trying to solve this problem.

Integrate Grammar and Writing

Writing and Grammar

Write Advice

Study the Models When you give people advice, give them ideas of what they should do. Include enough details to explain why they should do it, too.

NOT OK

An earthquake can be dangerous. You should be prepared. You should secure your belongings.

The writer uses some helping verbs to give advice, but there are not many details.

OK

An earthquake can be dangerous. Vases could tumble off shelves and hit you. Bookshelves and other furniture may fall over on you.

You should be prepared. You should secure your belongings. You can use special was to attach vases to the shelves. You should fasten bookshelves and furniture to the walls.

Now the reader has more information. The writer uses more helping verbs to add details.

Add Sentences Think of two sentences to add to the OK model above. Use can, could, may, might, or should.

WRITE ON YOUR OWN Imagine that a friend has moved to an area that has earthquakes. Write a letter with advice about what your friend should do and why.

REMEMBER

- Use can to tell what someone or something is able to do.
- Use could, may, or might to tell what is possible.
- Use should to tell what is good for someone to do.

◀ The people should stay away from the hole in the road.

Provide frequent opportunities for grammar practice and application

Personal Narrative

Grammar Workout

Check Helping Verbs

- A helping verb is a verb that works together with another verb. The main verb shows the action or state of being. The helping verb supports the main verb's meaning.

EXAMPLE An earthquake can shatter windows.

- Can, could, may, and might are helping verbs. Use can to tell what someone or something is able to do. Use could, may, or might to tell what is possible.

EXAMPLES We can prepare for a quake. A quake could hit our area. It may happen soon.

- Can, could, may, and might are always spelled the same way. They do not change with different subjects.

EXAMPLES We might see a film about earthquakes. Our teacher might show it during science class.

Find the Opportunities

I plan to write a report about earthquakes. Our school library might have some newspaper articles about last year's quake. It is best to use more than one source, so I could try to find three or four. My teacher offers her help, too. I ask her for some ideas if I get stuck. I get a really good grade on this report if I work hard!

Check the verbs. Where could you add a helping verb to make the meaning more precise? (You may have to change the main verb.)

More On Transitions

Some time words and some order words can serve as transitions. You can use these transitions to help you:

- show time

People stayed home that afternoon, not realizing that their neighborhood was in danger. ^{Seeps} Floodwater rushed into the streets.

- show events or ideas in sequence

I waded through the house and searched for her everywhere. ^{Finally} I found her upstairs in her room.

Study the transitions in this passage.

Narrative with Transitions

Helping Out an Old Friend

Alyx Del Lago

When I think about it today, it seems foolish. But back then I did not hesitate to do it. After I left school, I rode the bus as far as I could. Then I got out and walked toward my home. Later I had to wade through water. By early afternoon, I reached my doorstep. First, I called her name as I searched everywhere downstairs. Next, I searched the yard and garage. Meanwhile, I heard helicopters overhead and sirens. I went upstairs and finally found my cat, hiding under my bed.

These transitions show when events occur.

These transitions show the order of events or steps in a process.

Without transitions, the reader would not get a clear sense of the order of events.

122W Write About Your Life

Show Time

Read these time words that can work as transitions to show when events happen. Then study the passage.

now soon back then meanwhile recently
today after never in the future in the past

For some cities near large rivers, flooding has been a problem in the past. Today, however, flooding can be an even greater danger. Recently, climate changes have produced stronger storms, and more of them. As a result, major floods are more common now. Also, many of the cities have grown. Since a lot more people are living in these areas, more people are at risk from floods. Not all of these cities have built systems that protect against flooding. In the future, these cities will have to plan and build systems that control flooding as much as possible.

Show Events or Ideas in Sequence

These order words can work as transitions to show the order of events or the steps in a process. Study the words and the passage.

first third second next last finally

It's not easy to build a system to control flooding, especially in large, older cities. Engineers face many challenges. First, engineers must find ways to protect a city that was built long ago, long before anyone thought about flood-control planning. Second, they must consider how the structures will look. Citizens sometimes don't agree with the changes engineers want to make. Next, they must think about cost. It can be difficult to find money to pay for an advanced flood-control system. Finally, engineers must get approval for planned changes.

Writing Application

Write a Personal Narrative

WRITING PROMPT Nature can be scary sometimes. Have you ever experienced a big storm or an earthquake? Or maybe it was just a really tall wave at the beach that made you feel like you were about to drown? Think of an experience you'd like to share with your classmates. Then write a personal narrative that tells

- what happened in the beginning, middle, and end
- what you saw, heard, and experienced
- how you felt while it was happening
- what made the event memorable for you or what life lesson you have learned from it.

Prewrite

Here are some tips for before you start writing.

1 Choose a Topic

It works best to choose an event that

- was exciting, unusual or interesting
 - you remember well, so you can include enough details.
- It helps to write down several ideas and then choose the best. Josh used a chart like this to choose a topic.

Ideas	Good and Bad Points
The time the wave came into the whale-watching boat.	Exciting! Can't remember very well— I was just a baby.
The Loma Linda earthquake in second grade.	That was exciting for sure! I can remember it pretty well.
The time the lights went out and I got scared of thunder.	Not interesting enough to others.

124W Write About Your Life

2 Narrow Your Topic

Make sure you limit your topic so that it is not too broad for the kind of writing you want to do. Some topics take a whole book to do well! A smaller, more specific topic is easier to write about and will be much more interesting. Study how Josh narrowed his topic.

How Josh Narrowed His Topic

Strong earthquakes can damage buildings.

3 Gather Details

Next, gather details about the experience. Take notes to help you later as you draft. One way to gather specific sensory details is with a five-senses diagram.

Five-Senses Diagram

I saw . . .	• scared look on people's faces • kids crouching under desks • books all over the floor
I heard . . .	• kids crying • blocks clattering off shelves
I smelled . . .	• the fabric of my backpack • dust in the air
I tasted . . .	• the salt of my own tears!
I touched or felt . . .	• the rough underside of the desk • my friend's hair in my face
